India's Compromise Treaty Wins Western Support; Eden Hopeful

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 21 (AP)—The western Allies moved closer to agreement today on changes they hoped would bring full support—including that of the United States-behind India's compromise plan for ending the Korean war prisoner deadlock.

An eight-country group headed France planned to meet benind closed doors in the U.N. this morning to work over amendments to a plan submitted Wednesday by India's V. K. Krishna Menon. Other countries in the group are Australia, Turkey, Denmark and Colombia.

They have as a working basis thanges suggested Thursday by insist that Menon's resolution which the Soviet bloc in the U.N. already has rejected.

changes suggested Thursday by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, who said the Indian plan brings the U.N. nearer agreement on the one outstanding issue holding up a Korean armistice — the prison-of-war problem.

The Americans are reported to insist that Menon's resolution be clarified before they can accept it. The resolution embodies a canadian suggestion calling for four-country commission to handle repatriation of all war prisoners and take care of those who don't want to return to Red-

Mr. Low and Mr. Martin

Credit party in Parliament, save his speech here some weeks ago was misquoted. He was quoted as saying, in effect, that the Canadian government should issue more money to the public and thus create more purchasing power Mr. Low denies any such statement. If his remarks were misunderstood by the newspaper reporters it is regrettable and Low is entitled to the correction published here already. But it would appear that he was misunderstood by some of his audience and, evidently the Social Credit government of British

Mr. Low believes-and this is the essence of Social Credit-that the great, permanent and fatal flaw of modern ciety lies in its inability to provide the public with enough purchasing power to buy the goods it produces. That also is the starting point in the theories of Karl Marx, though Social Credit, of course, rejects all the rest of the communist

Most economists will agree that at certain times in the past the public's purchasing power has fallen far below the level of available goods. That was true in the depression of the thirties, though the tragedy of those times was by no means within the power of any single nation to cure it and was due to the over-expansion of purchasing power in the form of speculative credit. Society all over the world reaped the inevitable whirlwind of its own sowing when the boom broke.

This experience, like many others, showed that it is just as easy to err on one side as the other-to create too much money in relation to the available goods as to create too little. And the danger of Social Credit in its monetary aspects is that it almost certainly will lead to the error of inflation in attempting to cure the error of deflation.

If there could be any doubt about this it is removed by the recent utterances of the British Columbia govern ment, which is in disagreement with Mr.

Mr. Low apparently agrees with what has often been said here—that of recent years there has been too much purchasng power in the hands of the public in relation to the current production of goods. That is the central cause of inflation. Therefore Mr. Low denies that he proposes at the moment to pump more money into circulation. Quite rightly he says that the best solution of inflationary problem is the produc tion of more goods to balance the money now seeking them. In other words, Mr. Low is prepared to create and pour out more money but not now

This unfortunately is not the view of the British Columbia government as uttered by its responsible spokesman, Mr. Eric Martin, in a recent speech here. Mr. Martin sees no danger in more money even before there are more goods to be bought. On the contrary, he advocates the very process of more crude

NA LETTER TO THE TIMES MR. monetary inflation which Mr. Low re-Solon Low, leader of the Social pudiates, Mr. Martin denies that there is too much money in circulation. He says more should be created and handed over to the public even if this obviously could not create an extra pound of goods and could only create more inflation and higher prices under existing conditions. Mr. Low's thinking no doubt has been disciplined by the hard facts of national life as learned in Parliament. Mr. Martin is still talking in the language of Major Douglas' text book as if nothing had changed in the last two decades, as if there had been no inflation, as if we were still in a depression.

One could wish that Mr. Low would some educational work among his British Columbia followers but perhaps that would be a hopeless and unrewarding task. They have turned on the old gramophone record of the nineteenthirties and refuse to turn it off.

While maintaining the mythology of Social Credit, denouncing the interna-tional bankers and sometimes introducing racial whipping boys, Mr. Low has learned by now that the Canadian government desires as much as he to keep purchasing power and goods in balance, to curb both inflation and deflation.

During the war, in fact, the government, like all governments, created gigantic new sums of money to pay its running costs and this money, of into the market after the war, assured inflation. Mr. Low also must know, as some of his local followers do not, that the government at any moment can create as much money as it pleases through the central banking system, that the power to create it is not confined to the private banks, and that when they are inclined to create too much, in the form of loans, the government can step in and

In these respects there is no serious quarrel between the Canadian govern-ment and Social Credit. But they differ on just about everything else. Social Credit seems to believe as a sacred tenet of its ideology that the mere manipulation of money can solve all the economic ills of mankind overnight. The governnent knows that the problem is much deeper than that.

It knows, for example, that no possible manipulation of money within Canada can isolate this country from the economy of the world on which it lives-if for no other reason because we could eat all our foodstuffs or use our metals, lumber and other things even if every Canadian were given a million dollars a day and told to spend it.

Through the nature of our production are absolutely dependent on the world market. Through our gigantic trade we are compelled-even if we care nothing for our people's savingsto maintain the value of our money, the first though not the last danger of Social Credit is that it will destroy money in the belief that money alone solve everything. How reckless many Social Credit leaders have become is clearly indicated by such statesmen

Speech From the Throne

A seldom indicates the prospects of parliamentary sessions, which have a habit of producing, by spontaneous combustion, their own issues and often surprising results. In its statement to Parliament yesterday the Canadian government outlined many important matters of detail but revealed no new policies of importance. It is not required to do so at this stage in its Its policies are known and, by and large, are working well.

It appears, however, that the government has noted the recent criticism of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for its slow development of television. The government says that where the C.B.C. cannot provide this service private stations will be granted licenses. This is no change in original policy but it is evident that the C.B.C. has been told to hurry the erection of television stations at several key points outside central Canada, notably in Vancouver.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE This apparently will forestall the need of private stations, in the government's opinion. Whether that will satisfy the public remains to be seen.

There is no mention in the speech of the establishment of an independent tribunal to supervise all broadcasting, public and private, but this issue certainly will arise in Parliament. It begins to seem probable that the public and Parliament will insist change before long, provided that it does not threaten the future of the C.B.C. which most Canadians are determined to protect from any possible damage.

The omission of any mention of health insurance from the speech only confirms what is already known-that the government has no present intention of adopting that expensive service, as advocated by the C.C.F. with little regard to the burdens of the taxpayers.

The major issues of the session perhaps do not appear in the speech at all. They will probably revolve around taxes, trade and health insurance.

own feeling, that's all.

Well, the other day I felt the Septem ber 4 issue had been staring at me long enough. My left hand was about to throw it away when my right hand made me start reading it against my will. And I saw two very queer things I am glad to have seen.

The first was a poem. It is called "The Bank-notes," by one Francis King.

Mr. King (in his poem at least) is bidding farewell to some place, and to someone within the property of the propert within that place whom he once loved. He says there doesn't seem much to remember, yet his mind goes twisting back to it all. He says it is even hard to sort out the dreams from the reality, now that he is packing his trunks. Yet surely some of it must have existed, for how clearly he remembers the sound of bank-notes tearing as he kissed her. (The context makes it clear these were real money, not a vision of future expenses.

I think it is fair criticism of English poetry, rather than a personal affront to Mr. King, to suggest that he is either a very violent kisser, or carries very weak bank-notes. If the bank-notes were carried in a wallet, the whole thing be comes stranger still. According to my own theory, what happened was this the bank-notes belonged to Mr. King's rival, who was hurrying up to present them to the lady. When he saw her kiss ing Mr. King, he tore them up in a jealous frenzy.

But one of my fellow-critics (who happens to be the other half of my split personality, so I know him quite well) . . . one of my colleagues feels that what happened was far otherwise:
Mr. King was about to set out on another of his trips, and he sewed his money into his clothes. Unhappily, he did the sewing while dressed and behind his back at that (for he wished to be padded for horseback riding). Without noticing it, he sewed one end of each note to his shirt and the other end to his trous ers. And when he bent to kiss the lady, something had to give. Heavens, it was the bank-notes! Snap, crackle, pop, as the cereal-makers say.

The second item was less mysterious.

It was a letter to the editor. Never have been so taken with a letter. Here it is

"Sir, In Mr. W. Grigor McClelland's letter published in your last issue, he discloses that one of his revelations about the Russian people's peaceful intentions was to see in a snapshot a small Russian boy picking his nose .He will be interested to know that I saw, in Bucharest, in 1944, in reality, a Russian general doing the same thing through-out an official dinner.

"Yours, etc.,
"London, S.W. 10. G. A. IONESCU."

THEIR GIFT

I've been reading other letters to the papers, too . . . as well as a writin' of them from time to time. For example, there was a wonderful letter in The Spectator a few weeks ego. (Thanks a lot for your wonderful letters from everywhere, the radio blokes say. But letters to radio performers can scarcely be as wonderful as letters to the English press.) There had been an article in The Spectator about harmoniums, and this was followed by a correspondence. One reader wrote in to say that as a child he had owned a hand-operated mechanical organ. The handle inflated the bellows and also rotated a turntable on which discs of perforated cardboard were placed. The reader and his brother owned many records, but had only three which were permitted on Sundays. . . . "Pull for the shore," "Safe in the arms of Jesus," and "Hold the fort for I am coming." They soon found they could coming." They soon found they could double this repertoire by putting on the records upside down. This played the

He ended his letter: "We are probably the only two living persons who can render 'Safe in the arms of Jesus' the wrong way round." I should jolly well think so. I particularly like that word "living." as if the dead can manage these musical feats more readily.

Short Of The Lisbon Goal

BY JOSEPH ALSOP, from Paris

EVEN the White House pressures will E hardly make President-elect Eisen-nower forget his own greatest postwar achievement. More than any other man, he laid the foundations of the defense of the West in Europe. Consequently, one suspects he will be rather specially and personally interested in the completion of the structure that he start-

How this structure is to be completed—per-haps whether it is to be completed — is the question involved in a planning and planning and policy ahead. The crisis will officially begin on December 15, when the leaders of the on December 15, when the leaders of the N.A.T.O. nations will meet in Paris to agree on next year's defense plans. But the outlines of the crisis are plain!

Last February, at Lisbon, the partner nations at N.A.T.O. at length adopted a clearly defined program for Western European defense. This program did two things. It established a rising scale of national defense contributions for the years 1952, 1953 and 1954. And it set an eventual goal for the Western European defense forces. By the end of 1954, it was agreed, the N.A.T.O. Supreme Commander should have at his disposal 98 ready and reserve divisions and 10,000 front-line and home defense aircraft. During 1952, national contributions have been made approximately as sched-uled at Lisbon. By the end of the year, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway will have 25 divisions in position and 25 on call, with airplanes in proportion. Some of the ready divisions are seriously under strength. Some of those on call are pretty slender cadres. Overall, the 1952 goal will be about 90 per cent realized.

Now, however, Britain, France and the other N.A.T.O. partners on this side of the Atlantic are finding it increasingly difficult to sustain the strains of rearm ament. This difficulty, in turn, is about to show up in the defense inc that these nations will offer N.A.T.O. for

ONLY TWO DIVISIONS

Under the Lisbon program, for in stance, the French contribution for 1953 was to be three additional divisions, plus around 45,000 men to fill up existing divisional cadres, plus rather more than 300 additional aircraft.

But the French today only intend to transfer to Gen. Ridgway's command two existing French divisions now in North Africa. By the same token, the British ground force increment for 1953 will be at least 40 per cent under the level projected at Lisbon, and the air increment will be about 50 per cent short.

In practical terms, these developments have a simple meaning. Even if the French Chamber of Deputies does not block the creation of German divisions to assist in Western Europe's defense, the original Lisbon plan for 98 divisions and 10,000 aircraft cannot be realized. Plainly, this will be a very serious verall shortfall, especially when you consider that the pre-Lisbon plan for a minimum European defense, approved by Dwight D. Eisenhower himself as N.A. T.O.'s supreme commander, called for T.O.'s supreme commander, called no less than 120 divisions. Gen. Ridgway and his brilliant chief of staff, Gen. Gruenther, are going to oppose any reduction of the original Lisbon goals with all the weight of their authority. Any reduction of the planned build-up on the continent of Europe will produce bitter protests from the French and still more violent objections from the Germans.

There is going to be trouble all around The practical fact remains that the French, British and other European budgets will not stand for the rate of rearmament decided on at Lisbon. The prudent military requirements and the practical economic possibilities are in direct conflict. Such are the broad out lines of another of the gigantic problems that President-elect Eisenhower is going to find on the White House doorste then, having to guess at what the writer means. And then we have such generous little impulses as that news item told of down Virginia. It seems a young couple was parked in a car, hold-ing hands, gazing into a mist of stardust and oblivious of the pass-ing minutes and people. A woman took in the situation probably remembered her own romantic days in different circumstances—and put a nickel in the couple's empty parking meter. Many are life's little gifts with no sender's card. Lower main! "As a matter of fact," said the Elevator Man, "most of us are in the same position. Only a few make their contribution to life and the world and get their names put into the history books. The vast majority of us are anonymous donors, giving our little bit of life with-out credit, thanks or a tax refund. It's little enough, too, in most cases, but the total effort is great. It all adds up to the kind of world we have. We can add hatred or love, generosity or selfishness, helpfulness or obstruction, decency or inferiority. It all goes in the pot, gets stirred up and served back to us in the form of environment. The donors aren't named, and if we don't like the result there's nobody we can directly blame, except maybe ourselves. Mezza

"Sometimes," said the Elevator Man. "gifts don't turn out to be permanent, even when you know the giver. Take that young bridegroom who was looking through the gifts after the wedding reception and found one missing. He began a feverish search. 'Darling,' he shouted to the bride, 'that $1,000 cheque your father gave us is missing. I don't see it anywhere!" 'Poor Dad is so absentminded.' answered the little wife. 'He lit his cigar with it!'" that young bridegroom who was looking

Thurston family companies.

New president of the company is Frederick R. Thurston, head of Totem Pole & Piling Ltd. and Tyee Poles Ltd. Fils son, Robert H. Thurston, becomes secretary.

** Well-known insurance executive William Mann, C.L.U., active for the past 22 years in the Vic.

But now the boom has busted. Lumber prices have fallen. No loggers can hope to pay such prices to the government this year and still sell the lumber at profit the lumber men con

The result is the government is getting much lower revenue this year from these timber sales, it is pointed out.

Comparing average bids late this year with 1951, it is esti-mated fir trees were worth $25 last year per thousand feet. Today the price is between $15 and $17. The government is getting Claimed.

Moreover, trade spokesmen claim, the present government claim, the present government as already boosted charges to the operators with its new system for measuring content of the logs. The government now collects more in royalties. These are now paid on cubic content of trees compared with the older method of straight board feet.

Recently a customer asked us for recommendations for investing a large sum of money. He wanted Common Stocks paying fair dividends in sound Canadian Corporations. He did not wish to split up his capital into too many different securities. His chief concern was to secure safety of cipal with a reasonable and established dividend.

Our accepted recommendation was to purchase Com-mon shares of 14 industries representing steel, railroad, utility, newsprint, mining, textile and chemical enterprises, and included some insurance and bank stocks. The annual income from dividends for this client is now over $14,000.

Now we don't get many such large orders from private investors frequently. But we do receive, every day, hundreds and sometimes thousands of orders for securities in amounts of from $500 to $5,000 and upwards. We take good care of them, too. If you are so minded, we shall enjoy opening an account

If possible, call in at our nearest office and consult our representative about your requirements. Have a heart-toheart talk with him. The better you both know one another, the better we shall be able to serve you.

a stolen car on the Malahat's Tunnel Hill "because there was the possibility one or more of them had been injured or be-come lost." That comes from the organization's pioneer, Gordon Sword, today. The club is composed of keen sportsmen.

The possibility of injury was very likely when the boys, after leaving the car, dived over the railing and down the precipitous slopes in that area leading to Saanich Inlet, 1.000 feet below. "We'll help the police in any way in regard to lose or injury cases, but we are not policemen," said Sword. (Police caught the trio).

Upper Cowichan Rates Highly

The Jack Harris-Joe Hancock catch of rainbow trout beautie (pictured on these pages Wednesday) is a good example of what is offered anglers in Upper Cowichan River waters these days. Island open trout season closes Nov. 30.

Duck shooting is only rated as fair up to now. More rain is needed to fill in depressions in fields and then a good gusty blow should bing a lot of targets winging in from the adjacent islands. Joe Gilbault said Aubrey Kent was among the ones who had a good shooting trip out Saanichton-Sidney way.

Saanich Inlet features the salmon picture in these parts.

There is a bountiful supply of bluebacks and many anglers during the last 10 days have reeled in limits. Bucktail flies with spinner and abaloni spoons are the big killers. Few stout-hearted fans will wager on the outcome after Arwager on the outcome after a gonauts' 22-6 first-game victory and Tiger-Cats' tremendous 27-11 triumph, that tied the home-and-home total-points series at 33-33. The bettors are convinced after season of in-and-out play any thing can happen in 60 minutes.

Meanwhile, Sarnia Imperials,

Ontario Rugby Football Union champions, weren't too happy about having the sudden-death eastern final moved back from Saturday to Wednesday. Imperiat officials believed they would switch.

The Imps want 15 or 20 per cent of Saturday's gate receipts to compensate them for what they believe to be lost revenue, but the Big Four isn't likely to listen to their complaint.

Victoria High Totems will be trying to make it two wins in a row when they meet Courtenay School Junior League match at 7. A girls' game between Courtenay and Victoria High will follow at 8.

Totems, after losing three straight, ended their decline by pounding out an easy victory

Stricken After Lunch

City sanitation officials today took food samples from a Victoria home after a number of prominent local women suffered varying degrees of illness following a Thursday luncheon.

The luncheon was given by Mrs. A. H. Cox at her home, 950 Joan Crescent, in honor of Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, who is leaving shortly with her husband for Japan, where he has been appointed Canadian ambassador. Mr. Cox asked health authorities to check all the food that had been served.

Dr. J. L. Gayton, city health officer, said he had received a report of suspected food poison.

First Trip Here

Mrs. D. J. Cpl. McQuarrie told the court he and his companions did not kill the young deer. They had been working on a cable job in the area and saw the deer lying near a chicken coop, the corporal said.

He said the deer had been shot in the head when he saw it. It was still warm. He cut its throat with a knife and skinned it. However, in gutting the deer he had done something to spoil the meat, so he threw it in the sea. The head, skin and lower legs-were including chicken luncheon. including chicken been served.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 (CP)—Canada's former first lady, Countess Alexander of Tunis, has sent her "sincerest thanks" to the women of this country who contributed toward a gift of kitchen electrical equipment for her country home in England. "Words are inadequate to describe how grateful I feel, but I can honestly say that there are few gifts, if any, that could give more continuous and lasting pleasure to anyone than this perfect Canadlan kitchen," wrote Lady Alexander.

"My husband, who has never before shown much interest in cooking, is now a keen pupil and with my kitchen in view is,

I think, going to become a remarkably good chef."

Earl Alexander, now Britain's defence minister, was Canada's governor-general for six years. The letter was addressed to Mrs. Douglas Abbott, wife of Finance Minister Abbott, and chairman of the Lady Alexander gift committee

The B.C. Telephone Company has completed its plans for three attractive, modern new exchange buildings to house the automatic telephone equipment which will replace the existing Albion, Belmont and Colquitz manual systems.

Tenders are being called for now, and work on these new buildings, which will account for approximately $150,000 of a big $2,000,000 program, will begin early in the new year, and installation of the complex automatic equipment will start next summer.

The three new automatic exchanges will be "cut over" for service in the spring of 1954.

At the same time that the automatic conversion takes place, inter-exchange charges between Albion, Belmont, Colquitz and Victoria will be eliminated. It will then be possible to call anywhere within the Greater Victoria area simply by dialing the desired number, with an average speed of nine seconds on such a call.

Meantime, work is well under way on a $500,000 addition to Victoria's automatic telephone facilities. This follows completion of one of the largest outside cable programs ever undertaken by the company in Victoria. A $300,000 project, this added well over 60,000,000 feet of wire to the Victoria telephone cable system, most of the additions being underground.

By RAY SIDAWAY N.B.C. radio-TV comedian, Jerry Lewis, was named honorary mayor of Pacific Palisades, California, last Saturday at a dance held at the Riviera Country Club. The affair was staged by the Palisades Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Palisades Post and Howard Ross, N.B.C. talent co-ordinator.

Dean Martin, not to be outdone by his zany partner, who received a plaque, also was awarded one which named him honorary chief of police of Palisades—to be withdrawn unless "he moves to the Palisades within 30 days." Jessel, whose exchange of barbs with the comedy team delighted a jam-packed house.

A famous set of pearls, set in spun gold, are the chief clues that aid "Mr. Chameleon" in the "Braganza Black Pearl Murder Case," tonight at

The area of vaudeville magic is opened to "Mr. Keen, Tracer of Lost Persons" as he finds the person responsible for the demis of the magician's pretty assistant, in "The Case of Murder and the Magician," tonight at 9 on KIRO.

A domineering financially successful widowe attempts to pattern his daughter's life by forcing her into a loveless marriage, in the real life story "The Clash" in an eight-episode dramatization "Aunt Jenny" series, starting today. The "Aunt Jenny" real life stories are now in the 16th year of broadcasting over the C.B.S. radio.

Family Allowance cheques for December will be mailed early to miss the Chfistmas rush.

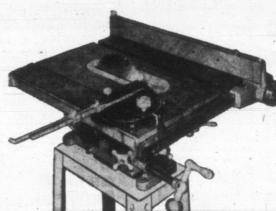

W. R. Bone, regional director of family allowances and old-age security said the family allowance cheques will be in the mail by Dec. 10. However, old-age security cheques will not be mailed early. They will go out at the end of December as usual.

If sent out at the usual time the family allowance cheques would just hit the Yuletide rush, for they are delivered on the 19th or 20th of each month.

The old-age security cheques are not normally delivered until the 30th or 31st of the month.

Reply to Sommers-Not 'Playing Poker'

VANCOUVER, Nov. 21 (CP)-The big bankroll boys of U.S. Pacific Northwest gas industries are saying they won't sit around the poker table with British Columbia.

But in their reply to B.C.'s anouncement of an "international poker game" with water rights and natural gas the stakes, they add they have no thoughts of shunning the conference table.

Lands Minister Robert Som mers said Americans, who are on power rationing in the Pacific Northwest, won't get water rights on the Kootenay River system unless they agree to take Peace River natural gas.

Without an American market, onstruction of a pipeline through B.C. is not economically feasible. Without an agreement with B.C., the U.S. can't increase storage for the Columbia River hydro sys-

U.S. gas industries spokesmen said water power is none of their concern and Canadian natural gas must be judged strictly on its nic merits,
